Notes for JOHAN KOENRATH BARBER:

Johan was born into the period when all the strongholds of the Dutch were ceded to the British by Governor Van Angelbeck and on that particularly memorable day the 16th February 1796 when night closed on the descending Standard of Holland, and at sunrise the British Flag flew on the walls of Colombo. Many of the civil inhabitants who had quite sufficient means to establish themselves in other countries, left the shores of Ceylon, the majority sought protection under the Dutch government at Batavia. Those who remained were nearly all employed in public departments, they continued in similar occupation under the British government.
